Feedback report

Academic Year (2022-2023)

Faculty members of the college feel that college should focus on the following points:

- Participatory Decision Making: Participatory decision-making will empower students, teachers, administrators, and even community members to contribute to the governance and direction of the college. By fostering a culture of inclusivity and collaboration institutions can harness diverse perspectives, leading to more informed decisions and a sense of ownership among the stakeholders.
- Promotion of Research and innovative activities: Encouraging research and innovation cultivates a culture of inquiry and creativity among faculty and students. College is expected to assist faculty members in establishing research centers, provide grants, and facilitate collaboration with industry or other institutions to foster groundbreaking solutions to real-world problems thus contributing to societal advancement.
- Transparent and Fair Evaluation system: Faculty members follow a transparent and fair evaluation system and maintain academic integrity while evaluating their students. To improve upon or develop a better evaluation mechanism students must participate in a regular feedback process and provide inputs to the college on the evaluation system.
- Adequate Infrastructure: Though the college has laboratories, classrooms, IT facilities, and recreational spaces to sustain the ongoing teaching-learning process there is an urgent need to improve these facilities further to provide a better educational environment to the students.
